A GENTLEMAN who was waiting for a street car to start yesterday morning, turned his back for a moment's chat with a friend, and when he looked around again he was rather deeply disgusted to find all the cars had rolled quietly off. THE DAY'S DISASTERS.

Some of the Effects of the Wind on Sunday.

THE SCENE ON THE LAKE SHORE

The Storm General Throughout this Section—Accidents, Delays—Other Notes.

The terrific wind and rain storm of Sunday seem to have been very general throughout this section of the country, so far as at present heard from.

Passengers on the regular Sunday bathing train, which left this city at 4:30 o'clock, reported shortly after passing Brighton they encountered one of the heaviest windstorms that was ever met on the road. The wind fairly howled and shrieked through the cars, and came with such violence as to necessitate the slowing up of the train for several miles, and finally almost a dead stop. The cars rocked from side to side, and employees of the train asserted to a select few that "anther pound or two will lay us out sure." In a few moments, however, the wind subsided somewhat, rain began to descend, and the train reached its destination without any further trouble.

At Ogden, however, evidences of a terrific blow were everywhere apparent. The dismantled Garfield shook and swayed to such an extent, as to compel some of the occupants to leave for terra firma or surrender their dinner to the ravenous gulls. All the shipping that had been idly floating on the L. & K., was picked up by the angry waves, and tossed high and dry upon the beach. Wave after wave came in with a roar and a dash that was simply grand in its effects, and created a surf on the beach in such quantities as has rarely ever been seen there before. The sea was rolling so high that only the more familiar with the bline dared to venture in. About twenty, however, of the more expert swimmers, braved the waves, and were amply repaid with what they termed the finest bath of the season. At Lake Point, affairs were in about the same state, less than a half-dozen venturing into the water.

At Tooele and Grantsville the wind and rain also did considerable damage; at the latter place immense haystacks fell, beating the grain, breaking windows, etc., while the rain came down in such quantities as to deluge the yards and necessitate some hard work to keep the fluid out of the dwellings.

The Point of the Mountain, at the south end of the valley—the Central's vulnerable point—was visited by the torrent in all its fury, and a bank of gravel 500 yards in length, and five or six feet in height was washed upon the track and there remained to oppose the progress of the train. The engine, with several cars, left on time, but was brought to a standstill by the gravel bank. The engine returned to Lehi at 6:30, and a telegram was forwarded here for relief train, which went down under Mr. Russell, and reached the wash-out at 9 o'clock. The passengers were then transferred and all arrived here at quarter to 10.

In Cedar Valley, west of Lehi, half fell to the depth of a foot and a half, and the face of the country generally resembled a scene in midwinter.

In the valley the wind and rain raged with the same severity. Trees were uprooted or denuded of their branches in nearly all parts of the city, some of the largest and oldest lying prone across the sidewalks yesterday, in some instances having come into contact with the telephone, impeding service to some extent. Even the usual placid Jordan, seem to partake of the general spirit of the occasion, and lashed itself into a perfect fury, scaring away the swarms of youths and small boys, who are wont to frequent it on the still Sabbath evenings.

On the benches to the west and southwest of the city, hay stacks were scattered around, and shingles torn from the roofs of some of the buildings. No loss of life or injuries to any great extent, was reported up to a late hour last evening. Ripe and unripe fruit was torn from the trees in all parts of the city, and it is thought considerable loss will be occasioned thereby.

At the D. & R. depot, the heavy wind moved on to the main track a couple of cars that had been left on the switch. The Bingham train came booming in with between seventy-five and 100 passengers on board, and collided with them, wrecking them both, and injuring the engine considerably. None of the passengers were injured, but most of them were considerably frightened.

The D. & R. G. train, which should have arrived at 5 o'clock last evening, did not reach Salt Lake until 1:45 this morning. A washout of some description, somewhere, at sometime, did some damage, and that was all the information that could be extracted from one of the sleep passengers as he jumped from the bus at the door and made a bee line for his room in the hotel.

Good Bread.

The Superior Whole-Wheat Flour, manufactured by the Pioneer Rolling Mills, and now sold by nearly all dealers in this city, is rapidly growing in public favor. It is more wholesome than other kinds, because it retains all the nutritive elements of the best wheat and it makes superior, fine flavored, white bread that retains moisture and sweetness many days.

Good bread, "the staff of life" is the most desirable article of daily food, but it is frequently spoiled, especially in warm weather, by the use of poor yeast. Fire-yeast is not good for bread making, and yeast that has become sour, or dull colored, is not fit to be used. Care should be exercised, also, to prevent bread becoming sour, by too much fermentation.

FUNERAL SERVICES.

Last Respects to the Late W. R. Judd.

Thirty people, friends and acquaintances of Riley Judd during his life time, took the Utah & Nevada on Sunday and were met by conveyances at the Half Way House on the arrival of the train. Assembling at the residence of the deceased, a procession was formed, and the pall bearers bore the corpse to the Grantsville meeting house. A great crowd was in attendance, representatives from all parts of the country having assembled out of respect to the memory of the departed. The speakers were Mayor Sharp, S. A. Sawyer, S. H. Hill and C. L. Anderson. Prayers were offered by W. H. Lee and John Gillespie. The Grantsville brass band headed the funeral procession to the cemetery and at the grave the choir rendered "Sweet rest in Heaven." All that was mortal of the departed was then consigned to its final rest. While the solemn service was at the grave, the severe storm got underway, afternoon struck Grantsville, the people took refuge in the meeting house, and anywhere else they could gain shelter. Children were reported hurt from being struck with hailstones, which descended in unusual size, and with incredible severity.

A COMPROMISE.

Affairs at the Palace Hotel Arranging Themselves.

A ray of light has pierced the black complications which have for so long enveloped everything and everybody connected with the Palace Hotel, and it now looks as if matters had assumed some such shape that they can be intelligently written about. Yesterday, the parties litigant arrived at some sort of understanding by which Mr. Brinscher, owner of the hotel, regains possession of his property, and all the furniture is handed over to the mortgagees, Messrs. Brinscher and Dinwiddie, in settlement of their claims. How these gentlemen will settle between themselves, yet remains a matter for future development.

TO OUR FRIENDS AND THE PUBLIC GENERALLY.

We take great pleasure in announcing to you that we have at last succeeded in making arrangements to open a fine Importing Merchant Tailoring Business in all its branches. We have observed for a number of years how necessary such a movement was in order to keep our money at home, so as to circulate it in our own midst in place of sending it to eastern and western cities.

We saw how a person by bringing goods equally fine in texture, and securing a first class cutter, and employing the best journeymen tailors, could make up goods to compare with any Merchant Tailors East or West in quality, finish, fit and price.

We propose to impress the public with an idea of cheap goods or work; we propose to make up fine goods only, trimmed up in first class style; We propose to pay labor what it is entitled to for fine work and the margins thus left us, will not be any more in proportion than a low priced suit made and trimmed cheaply.

We propose this to the public, that no goods shall leave our place of business unless they are first class in every particular.

Our Mr. Levisberg who has just returned from New York, after a great deal of hard work has secured the services of Mr. Martin Schmidt, as cutter and general superintendent of the entire department. Mr. Schmidt is a gentleman who has had a great many years of practical experience, both as a Tailor and Cutter, having been employed by some of the leading tailors in London and New York; and we feel safe in saying to our friends—give us a trial; the goods were carefully selected by our Mr. Levisberg who we think has displayed good taste in selecting them as will justify the demand of this country; however, we would be more than satisfied if the public would endorse this by their examination of the goods, when we open our place of business, Tuesday, Sep. 1st, 1885.

We also wish to call the public's attention to the fact that while in New York our Mr. Levisberg has made arrangements with first class custom shirt makers; we shall carry samples of fine foreign underwear and hosiery; we are also prepared to take measures for gent's fine custom made shoes, and feel confident that we can give satisfaction; however we are willing to let our judges—the public—decide this. In closing this address to our friends and the public we simply ask a trial.

Respectfully Yours,

CAUGHT ON THE FLY.

A Herald Correspondent and the Idaho Marshal.

FRED T. DUBOIS INTERVIEWED.

His Ideas, His Utterances, and the Correspondent's Conclusions—Notes From Idaho.

Our correspondent met the noted and beautiful young U. S. Marshal for Idaho, on the Utah & Northern, Sunday, on his way to Salt Lake, and the following interview ensued:

CORRESPONDENT—How old are you, Marshal?

DUBOIS—Thirty four years.

C.—Where do you hail from now?

D.—Immediately from Boise, but I have been to Vancouver Island on the Hibbs extradition business.

C.—Who is Hibbs and what about him?

D.—Well, Hibbs is the alleged defaulter or rather forging postmaster of Lewiston, Nez Perce County, Idaho, who, after swindling numerous parties out of various sums amounting in the aggregate to $20,000 buried himself under Her Majesty's protection in Vancouver Island, revealing as he supposed, in his freedom from the articles of extradition, he led a fast life and appeared secure. We arrested him in Vancouver and an examination of his person, disclosed to us on the calves of his legs, done up in true padding style, $10,000 in greenbacks. Hibbs was placed in jail and the question is, is he guilty of forgery by signing fictitious names to his papers and orders? Under the treaty, forgery is extraditable, and the question arises and is made the point, is it forgery?

C.—How is Hibbs on the annexation question?

D.—Pledged to it on the platform adopted by the last Territorial Convention. That's all I can say.

C.—How is Hibbs on the Mormon question, and what does he think of the test oath that disfranchises all Mormons from voting and holding office?

D.—He is in favor of the enforcement of the law against polygamists, but opposed to the operation of the test oath and election bill as I understand it.

C.—What do you think about the test oath and election bill as passed by the last session of the legislature?

D.—I think they are constitutional and will more effectually extirpate polygamy and break down the union of Church and State in Idaho than any other measures as yet introduced.

C.—What do the people in Idaho think of the removal of Judge Morgan and the appointment of his successor, Judge Hayes?

D.—There are conflicting opinions as to the removal of Morgan. The Mormons, while holding a high estimate of the late Chief Justice, charge him with alignment with the radical anti-Mormon element of southeastern Idaho, and therefore are pleased with his removal; on the other hand the anti-Mormons regard him as a martyr and the Mormons say: "If 'butchered to make a Roman holiday,' let us have it and enjoy it."

C.—What do people in southern Idaho think of the new judge, Hayes?

D.—From my acquaintance, and all that I know or hear, the feeling is favorable.

C.—How about Old Honest John Hainley, and the feeling in the community about his recommendations as to appointments under the present administration for offices in the Territory?

D.—His recommendations for appointments so far have given general satisfaction, but there is great uncertainty as to the position Delegate Hainley will take in Congress on the Mormon and other internal local questions.

C.—You are custodian and manager of the Idaho Penitentiary, and as such have in your charge certain Lottery Saints, convicted of illegal combination. How are they getting along?

D.—Getting along nicely, just the same as other prisoners.

C.—How is their conduct compared with that of other prisoners under your charge?

D.—They obey the rules and are well conducted, and claim their incarceration is for conscience sake.

C.—Does imprisonment of Mormons for their faith in Idaho seem to make them go back on their religion?

D.—It does not.

C.—And, why does it not?

D.—Because, I think, the punishment is not severe enough, and for this reason Idaho can only prosecute for illegal combination, as all parties contracting polygamious marriages make the contract in Utah Territory, and we cannot try them for polygamy in Idaho.

C.—Why do not the Mormons imprisoned in the Boise Penitentiary, for their friends, left to pay their own expenses and every inducement, religious, political and otherwise held out to them, why do they not desert their faith?

D.—Because they can't do it without polygamy.

C.—If polygamy puts them in the penitentiary and subjects them to all the disgrace and inconvenience of a felon's imperfections, why do they not give it up?

D.—Because they do not as yet clearly see the evils of it.

C.—Please state the evils of it as you understand it.

D.—Violation of law, open and successful, means the destruction of the government and the sacredness of family ties.

C.—What are you going to do about arrests of alleged polygamists in Bear Lake County?

D.—I have some very particular friends there—may drop in and see them at their earnest solicitation, they are urging me continually and I am of a visiting nature. I will telephone my Bear Lake friends when I am coming so that they can entertain me in a "hostile manner."

C.—From your knowledge of the morality of Mormons and Gentiles in southern Idaho, what is your opinion as to the worst element of the two?

D.—The Mormons.

C.—Why?

D.—Because they believe in polygamy and are industries in their belief, while Gentiles will knock under and give up on any consideration that suits their interests.

A SUBJECT OF INTEREST.

A Revolution in the Industry of Sugar Refining.

SALT LAKE CITY, August 22, 1885.

To the Editor of THE HERALD:

A short time since you very kindly sent me a clipping from an English paper setting forth that there was a New York company called the "Sugarcane Sugar Refining Company," which was formed for the purpose of working on the discovery of a certain scientific process which declared that he could, at the nominal cost of 50c. per ton, refine sugar by means of electricity. I thought there must be something mythical about such an affair, but still felt interested enough, while lately in New York, to make up the company, if there were such a one. I really did find at 111 William Street, in a neat and commodious suite of offices, the company mentioned, with Mr. Woodworth, president, to whom I obtained introduction, and was assured by him that the statement in the clipping referred to was correct. A discovery has been made by a professor of the nature of the nature above mentioned, who has practically demonstrated that he could by means of electricity refine the roughest raw sugar in an incredibly short space of time, and very inexpensively, and before I left he gave me four samples, which I shall show you as they are portions of forty barrels of sugar refined by the Professor in seven hours. You will perceive that the crystallization is not the same as that produced by solution; this process operates upon the raw sugar in a dry state, but for purity of whiteness and of taste it is certainly equal to any refined sugar I ever saw. The professor intends patenting his discovery just as soon as the capital is raised to provide a plant of sufficient capacity to refine four thousand barrels of sugar per day, which he claims can be accomplished for one hundred thousand dollars, with which plant the cost of refining, he claims, will not exceed eighty cents per ton. When you remember that the present price of refining costs the people now nine dollars per ton, you can readily see that there is a good deal of a revolution in the sugar industry. After the plant is a successful operation, the professor who holds up to this time the secret in his own breast, intends to patent his discovery, but not before. He has prepared the formula in a sealed package and bequeathed it to his family in case of his sudden death.

My great interest in this matter is, of course, as it will affect this people, of the tons of sugar I have made him from sorghum the flavor of the sorghum and the color of the sugar have always been commented on (although all raw sugar has both color and flavor) adversely, and the refining by solution is such a costly affair, no buildings and apparatus can be provided for less than a half a million, it seemed almost hopeless that we could enjoy the luxury of sugar refined at home, but this principle shows us at once a way out of the difficulty, because everything that is true to nature can be accomplished as well as a costly affair, on a large and very little difference in cost, as here is independence indeed; an arena for which we are now paying a million a year, we can produce ourselves as good and as perfect as we can buy from abroad, the question of cost alone remaining to be overcome by our energy and by the accumulation of sufficient capital. Very respectfully,

ARTHUR STARKER.

Tibbets in the North.

John Condon yesterday entered into an agreement for Tibbets, of the Halley Baseball Club, and Billy Davis, to run 100 yards for $300 a side. The race is to be run on September 1st, at the Halley Park, either party failing to come to the scratch when time is called, according to stipulations in the agreement, forfeits his $100. Davis is a prospector, and has just come down from the Chaffin coast. He is said to be above the average foot-racer. Tibbets is a Salt Lake boy. He is confident of winning, and he is morally certain that he will, but will nevertheless train a little to be doubly sure. Davis has struck a porphyry lode in Tibbets and can win a good deal of money if he can get around him. Judges will be appointed on the grounds, Wood River Times.

Grace Hawthorne.

Of this lady, who opens at the Opera House on Friday evening, in The New Camille, the Cincinnati Times-Star says: "Of the several new stars that have been seen in this city during the present theatrical season, Miss Grace Hawthorne, who is now playing at Halley's Theatre, is the most capable and the most deserving of unequalled favor and support. It is against our rule to make any comparisons, and we shall only compare Miss Hawthorne with others in a general way, but it is time that the theatre-going public should make a very positive distinction between actors and actresses who possess the genius, the heaven-given talent for their noble profession, and the shallow young men and women who, devoid of the divine inspiration which gives greatness to our true artists, can only use the external trappings and methods of the real kings and queens of the stage. Miss Hawthorne came to us this week wholly unknown, except as the circus-like advertising of her manager introduced her, and it is to be regretted that more reliance was not placed upon her abilities as an actress to attract attention, for she certainly has such a list. She is by no means a callow novice. She has been on the stage several years, and has all the ease which comes from experience, and in addition is gifted with the natural instincts of a great actor, and gives a performance which is in every way enjoyable."

To the Ogden Club.

Gentlemen—We accept your conditions for Saturday, the 29th, game to be called at 2:30 p.m.; our $50 will be deposited with the SALT LAKE HERALD at any time you may signify your readiness.

Pools on the result will be sold at the Referee Saloon Friday evening; Ogden is undoubtedly ahead as far as public feeling goes, but the probability that the Wells boys of Willards will not accompany the team, and the fact that B-rider plays with the Salt Lakes, is stiffening up the sentiment for the home team.
